

From Backlist to Big Mover

How West Margin Press Used Actionable Data To Profit From An Opportunity

West Margin Press' The Last Letters from Attu was a ten-year old novel experiencing stagnant sales until the sudden rise in popularity about the WWII Battle of Attu. Marketing Insights identified increased activity across the web and surfaced new marketing opportunities and recommendations for West Margin Press to act on. By following the actions recommended by Marketing Insights, Last Letters from Attu's sales and discoverability increased dramatically over a 3-month span.

The Set-Up

Last Letters from Attu, published in 2009, was experiencing sluggish sales, coupled with poor Amazon rankings —due to low search results and online chatter. A new Atria title on the Battle of Attu, The Storms on Our Shores, and its associated press coverage, including a feature on the author on 60 Minutes took flight. The release of The Storm on Our Shores, published in April 2019, provided Last Letters from Attu an opportunity to boost discoverability and sales, and that's where Marketing Insights came in.

Marketing Insights in Action

Marketing Insights identified Last Letters from Attu as a "Big Mover" owing to a large jump in sales rank. As a result, a unique list of opportunities was generated for the publisher:

1. Bold the first line of the book description
2. Promote the book using relevant hashtags on social channels
3. Update the Amazon author page
4. Target Amazon ads to consumers interested in related categories and genres

Etta Jones was not a World War II soldier or a war time spy. She was a school teacher whose life changed forever on that Sunday morning in June 1942 when the Japanese military invaded Attu Island and Etta became a prisoner of war.

Etta and her sister moved to the Territory of Alaska in 1922. She planned to stay only one year as a vacation, but this 40 something year old nurse from back east met Foster Jones and fell in love. They married and for nearly twenty years they lived, worked and taught in remote Athabascan, Alutiq, Yup'ik and Aleut villages where they were the only outsiders. Their last assignment was Attu.

After the invasion, Etta became a prisoner of war and spent 39 months in Japanese POW sites located in Yokohama and Totsuka. She was the first female Caucasian taken prisoner by a foreign enemy on the North American Continent since the War of 1812, and she was the first American female released by the Japanese at the end of World War II.

Using descriptive letters that she penned herself, her unpublished manuscript, historical documents and personal interviews with key people who were involved with events as they happened, her extraordinary story is told for the first time in this book.
